

REDPOINT

IN A NUTSHELL PINE, LIME AND TOFFEE. ALLEZ!

For the past couple of years, The Wheaty has sponsored Vertical Reality Climbing and the SA Sport Climbing Series by offering liquid incentive to crimp, crush and flash unlikely ‘problems’ on improbable plastic. This year, we teamed up with VRC to brew a post-series restorative.

The problem: an end of Comp beer for veterans and newbies alike, not so easy you can walk up the wall, not so hard only the pros are willing to tackle it. In Bouldering terms, a ‘V4’ brew.

The beta: a fresh, hoppy, oaty Red Ale with enough zing to interest the beer monkey while friendly enough to welcome the rookie. A session Blood Oats in effect, with hoppy high notes to give you some elevation and low booze to keep you off the crash pad...

Taking those torturous analogies even further, Redpoint is a ‘send’.

Here’s to balance, in all of its manifestations...
