

ALLEZ!

IN A NUTSHELL CITRUS, TOFFEE & ZING. APERITIF.

For some years now, The Wheaty has sponsored Vertical Reality Climbing and the SA Sport Climbing Series by offering liquid incentive to crimp, crush and flash unlikely 'problems' on improbable plastic. For the second year running, we teamed up with VRC to brew a post-series restorative.

The problem: an end of Comp beer for veterans and newbies alike, not so easy you can walk up the wall, not so hard only the pros are willing to tackle it. In Bouldering terms, a 'V5' brew.

The beta: a fresh, hoppy, citrusy Amber Ale with enough zing to interest the beer monkey yet friendly enough to welcome the rookie. The crux: fresh Blood Orange flesh and zest added to the fermentor during secondary, lending Allez! a Campari-like bitter tang, with just enough bite to stimulate an appetite for hoppy high notes - while keeping the booze low enough to keep you off the crash pad...Go! Go! Go!

Taking those torturous analogies even further, Allez! is a grade or two more challenging than last year's brew.

Here's to balance, in all of its manifestations...
